Prepared by Al Case, Southern Oregon University, this new comprehensive workbook focuses on tips and strategies to help students solve problems from the textbook. Each chapter contains an overview, a summary of How and Why things to consider from the text learning objectives, and a multitude of multiple-choice exercises and problems with following rationale and full step-by-step explanations of the answers. Going beyond normal study guides, the author has written this student resource in a conversational tone in an effort to guide students through a thorough understanding of some of the overly complex subject matter in the course.
