The present world now is confronting power crisis. The reasons led to this crisis include: power center rapidly transfers from the West to the East; people around the world awaken successively politically; behavior of America is more and more disappointing domestically and internationally. This crisis forms long-term challenges to benefits of America, existence of some endangered countries, common effort to responding to nuclear dispersal and climate change and geopolitical stability in a wider sense. Strategic Vision (America and the Crisis of Global Power) compiled by Zbigniew Kazimierz Brzezinski holds the opinion that America can and should actively interfere and be the navigator. However, to achieve this, it must solve its domestic problems and formulate strategies which can respond to the benefits of its various districts. America should promote greater and wider unification in Europe and finally admit Russia and Turkey into more vigorous and powerful West.
