Unexpected Endings: selected stories by O. Henry (Annotated and Illustrated) O. Henry

O. Henry (1862-1910) was a legendary American writer, who is considered as the master of brief genre. His sad and at the same time heart-touching stories are devoted to themes of human nature, self-sacrifice, compassion and characterized by surprise endings. The present collection contains two brilliant stories, “The Last Leaf” and “The Gift of the Magi”, which will impress you and not leave indifferent.

One of the most Christmas spirit stories “The Gift of the Magi “ was written in 1905 and narrates about Mr. James Dillingham and his wife, Della, who both want to make a good Christmas present to each other, but their money are tight, and they in secrecy sale the most valuable things they have. Written in 1907, “The Last Leaf” is about two young women, one of which is ill. She is close to death, and, laying in her bed, she counts the leaves which fall from a vine. She decides, that when the last leaf drops, she will die too. Her best friend Susie does everything to distract her from pessimistic thoughts, but in the end for the convalescence Joanna will be grateful to mr. Behrman, an elderly, frustrated artist who lives below...
