How to Write an A+ Essay: A Step-by-Step Guide to Acing Your Next Assignment Jenny Sawyer

THE STEP-BY-STEP GUIDE TO HACKING YOUR NEXT ESSAY ASSIGNMENT.

I'm going to make a confession. I was a straight-A student in high school. I graduated summa cum laude from college. My senior thesis won the institution's coveted essay-writing prize. Not thanks to raw brilliance, or dazzling talent.

No, I knew how to write essays. You see, great essays aren't necessarily written by the "best and brightest." They're written by students who know the rules—from concept to thesis statement, from outline to final draft. Students who know how to get the best possible grade for the least amount of work.

I'll show you how you can, too.

IT'S EASIER THAN YOU MIGHT THINK.

My name is Jenny Sawyer. Over the past five years, I've been the girl behind 60second Recap®. I've invested thousands of hours helping teens understand classic literature. I've answered countless emails seeking help with essay assignments. I've guided individual students, one-on-one, through the process of crafting thesis statements and writing essays, testing and refining the techniques I used when I was in school. Strategies I employed to nail essay after essay.

Most people think A+ essays require hours of hard work. Or genius. I'd always had a hunch they'd thought wrong. Now, I'm certain of it:

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE A GENIUS TO WRITE AN A+ ESSAY

I've read mediocre essays from brilliant students. Great essays from ordinary students. What sets those A+ essay-writing students apart?

They know how to analyze the assignment to keep themselves on track.

I'll show you how you can, too.

YOU DON'T NEED LONG HOURS TO WRITE AN A+ ESSAY

The best essays rarely take the most time. In fact, some nearly write themselves.

How?

With the right kind of preparation: A+ essay-writing students organize their research and cut their workload by as much as half.

I'll show you how you can, too.

FORMULAS ARE NEVER THE ANSWER, BUT...

A+ essays are never formulaic. But they have a lot in common.

- A+ essays start strong with crisp, provocative thesis statements.
- A+ essays support those thesis statements with well-chosen examples and tightly-reasoned arguments—the hallmarks of persuasive writing.
- A+ essays finish strong, with conclusions that lock the reader into agreement with the essay's thesis.
- A+ essays are written by students working from a simple framework: the five-paragraph essay format.

I'll show you how you can, too.

DON'T BE INTIMIDATED: IT'S A HEAD GAME, YOU KNOW

Ready to supercharge your essay-writing process? You can when you “think like a prosecutor.” I'll show you how. I'll also reveal the courtroom “trick” you can use to save yourself time and trouble while you craft a great thesis statement. You'll see how you can use the strategies of a criminal trial to speed you through each step of the essay-writing process, from the organization of your research, to the writing of your thesis statement, to the polish of your final draft.

It's the first time I've ever set this strategy to paper. Now it's all here for you, just a click away.
